NUMBER 28.

UNE PETITE.

Two up in the mountains I met her
Last summer, and I will never forget her
The day I saw her, it was a fine day,
The sun was shining, and the birds were
Singing, and the flowers were blooming,
And she was so beautiful, and so
Kind, and so sweet, and so good,<
That I have never since been able to Forget her, and I hope you never will.

AN HOUR IN A COLLIERY.

Through the earth's crust into a coal-mine,
To see what the miners do, and how they
Live, and what their work is, and how
They get the coal out of the ground,
And how they get it to the surface,
And how they get it to the market,
And how they get it to the people.

FLOYD WILLIAMS

He Paid the Penalty of the Crime of STICKLING'S MURDER.

By Death Upon the Gallows at Campson, On Friday, September 4th, 1885.

His Confession in Full.

Floyd Williams was hung at Campson, on Friday last, for the murder of John Stickling, on the 21st day of June, 1885.

Stickling and his guard arrived at Mr. Sterling just about dusk Thursday evening, bringing the condemned man, who has been in jail at that place since the death sentence was passed upon him. The people, many of whom were on hand to witness the execution next day, rushed to see him, while the guard awaited the coming of John Stickling. Only a few, however, succeeded in shaking hands with him before the jailer arrived, among them THE HERALD men, in reply to whose inquiry as to the prisoner's name, Floyd replied that he felt as well as he ever did in his life, and he certainly looked the picture of health, while a smile played around his mouth.

After supper we received a message from him, asking us to call at his place of his confinement. One was taken him, and after reading it carefully he stated that it was correct. He asked for a cigar, and we handed him one, which he smoked, and he was ready to be interviewed. We asked him how he felt about the part he was to play in the drama next day, and he replied, "Death can come only once to any man. I die tomorrow, and another may die next day. The only difference is that one man may die in bed, another be shot, &c., while I shall die upon the gallows." He said he felt sure that he would pass into another, and be born again, and that we were then relying upon the matron in the jail that he had prayed to God as he best knew how, and that, upon his knees, and while we were in the room of Mr. Sterling, was praying for him in the jail at that place the night before, he had been pardoned of his life. He looked it. His face shone with gladness. He apparently looked forward to the end of his life, and he much joy. He thanked us for THE HERALD, which he had sent him every week since he was captured at this place last spring. After handing him his own cigar, we remarked that he perhaps had not felt like sleep, and the cigar would help him to sleep. To our surprise, he replied that he would sleep as soundly as night as he ever had. We then left him, and he went to his cell, and he was not seen again until the morning. He remained here, Mr. Sterling that he was to be hanged next morning at 10 o'clock. Thus he lived, on Friday morning he was very healthy, a cheerful, and the people, those who sometimes drink, drank equal praise for abstaining at a time when so many women and children were present for the execution, those inclined to drink could have secured liquor. On the whole, all deserve praise for the quiet, peaceable order of the day, and the fact that so large an assembly, 4,000 persons, with no disturbance, will go far to advance the interests of our section. Whenever we convince capitalists that neither their persons or property are in danger in this section, then will they contribute and help us develop the great wealth we have. To that end, let us convince them that we are now and will continue to be law-abiding people. If the good citizens will only make an effort in that direction, we can soon do so. Scial.

FATHER'S ADVICE TO HIS SON.—"My son, I have heretofore presented you with the copy of the Holy Bible. If you study only one book let that be the book, as the truths it contains 'are able to make you wise unto salvation.' I herewith present you with a copy of the most esteemed Webster's Unabridged Dictionary. If you study only two books let this be the other, as it is not only a dictionary unparaleled in the spelling, pronunciation and definition of words, but it is also an encyclopedia of information in its vocabulary of persons and places noted in Fiction, Scripture, Greek, Latin, and Geographical Names, Biographical Dictionary, Quotations, Pictorial Illustrations, &c., making a book to which you will have occasion frequently to refer during life."—President Marion Female College.

Our composer, Mr. H. C. Herndon, was summoned to testify before the U. S. Court, at Louisville this week, and we had no time to supply his place. This, coupled with the fact that we were away two days last week, makes it the late this week, and the paper not so good as usual. We note those circumstances over which we have no control, but our friends may pardon our shortcomings, and we hope they will.

We visited the public school at this place, under the control of Mrs. Mary Nickell, and were well pleased with the manner in which she conducted the school. Mrs. Nickell labors hard to advance the interests of her pupils, for which she deserves great praise.

Pulk Mitchell, a street car driver, and late deputy chief of police, Chattanooga, was murdered by a negro road at that place last Sunday, because of his ejectment from the car for obscene language in the presence of ladies.

Several items of interest are unavoidably left out of this issue, not so much from want of space, but from want of time. We will endeavor to remedy next week, by giving all the news.

S.S.S.

Indigestion Cured.

I suffered for more than five years with indigestion, frequently unable to finish the smallest meal or to assimilate my food. I declined to live and suffer all the time, and I determined to make a special effort to get well. I failed, but I did not believe in giving up. I then mentioned the name of S.S.S. to a friend. The medicine worked like a charm. I was able to eat again. The medicine cured me of all that burning cancer, and I could go on with my life. I am now a healthy man, and I can eat and eat anything in the shape of food, and digest it. I feel like a new man.
